GI Guilty of Prisoner Abuse

Case is first court-martial to stem from Iraq prison photos

BAGHDAD, IRAQ | Spc. Jeremy C. Sivits wept and apologized after receiving the maximum penalty of a year in prison and a bad conduct discharge Wednesday in the first court-martial stemming from abuse of Iraqis by U.S. forces inside the Abu Ghraib prison.

His testimony will now be used to prosecute other Americans accused of mistreating prisoners — most immediately, three men from his Reserve unit who also appeared in court Wednesday.

Sivits pleaded guilty to four counts for taking pictures of naked Iraqi prisoners being humiliated, including some of the photographs that triggered the abuse scandal and sparked international outrage when they were broadcast and published last month.

His hearing marked the start of American efforts to investigate who was responsible for the abuse and punish the guilty, a process expected to stretch to the highest levels of the military.

Within hours of Sivits's court-martial,

Lt. Gen. Ricardo Sanchez, the senior U.S. commander in Iraq, told the Senate Armed Services Committee in Washington that abuse of prisoners in Iraq will be investigated thoroughly up the chain of command, "and that includes me."

Sanchez, who ordered an investigation into alleged mistreatment last January, said continuing probes may result in more criminal charges in connection with the abuses at Abu Ghraib. Sanchez said some officers who received career-ending reprimands may also face criminal charges. ANTHONY DEUTSCH (AP)

ANIMAL WATCH | Huggy Bear A Swedish exchange student's encounter with Alaskan wildlife was a bit closer than he'd expected. Max Bergman was sunbathing on Starr Hill in Juneau on Saturday when he felt something fuzzy nuzzling and licking him.

It turned out to be a bear cub. On all fours, Bergman said, the bear was about four feet tall. He tried to push the bear away, and it finally ended up bounding off. "If I would not have moved, it might have taken a bite out of me," he said. (AP) EyeOpeners | Page 2

Getting The Bird

Amy Miley-House wanted to find just the right birthday present for her husband, Aaron House — an admitted fan of all things tacky. She cooked up a plan to plant lawn flamingoes in their front yard and took it to a group of friends. But they had a better idea. On Monday, his 30th birthday, House awoke to find one very big, very pink bird on his lawn, the Herald-Mail newspaper reported. House said he plans to leave the 19-foot flamingo up until at least Friday. (EXPRESS)

Chemistry Lesson

A student in Odessa, Texas, who drank a chemical from his high school lab on a dare was recovering in a hospital, but not before a scare. The student drank the unidentified chemical on a bet at the school, said Nancy Smith, a supervisor at the University Medical Center in Lubbock.

"We need to find out what it was from the toxicologist," Assistant Principal Ray Lascano said. "All of those materials belonged to one of the chemistry labs." The student, a junior at Odessa High School, was found last Wednesday in a school hallway, bleeding from the nose and mouth. He was upgraded Monday from critical to satisfactory condition. Lascano says police are investigating the incident. (AP)

Prison Fashion

Guards at the jail in St. Joseph County, Ind., are doing double duty as fashion police, enforcing new regulations that prohibit visitors from wearing scanty attire. The new rules are on a sign posted ed at the jail entrance, the South Bend Tribune reported Tuesday. See-through tops, mini skirts and short shorts are out, and underwear is required to remain invisible. Hats also are banned, since they can be used to smuggle items into the jail or may be a gang emblem. (AP)

RESCUES

My Pet Snakehead

Animal control authorities in Martinsburg, W.Va., have found homes for the frilled dragon and the hedgehog that were left unattended for two weeks in a crammed and stagnant mobile home, but the snakehead fish had to go. The species, which has turned up in the waters of the Potomac River and a pond in Crofton, Md., is banned in 13 states for fear it will destroy local fish populations, so officer J.W. Ramos said he had no choice but to kill it. It was his first encounter with the toothy fish, he said, "and hopefully it will be my last." (AP)

FROGS

It's Not Easy

Eldon Enger of Midland, Mich., is all ears when he's looking for frogs. The retired biology professor is a volunteer frog counter for the Michigan Department of Natural Resources. Each spring the department does a frog and toad census — and finding the frogs is no simple task. Enger says frogs hush up when they sense someone coming, which makes it hard to listen for their distinctive croaking. But if you're quiet for a while, he says, they'll start singing again. (AP)

Lawmakers Want Progress On High-Tech Airport IDs

The government must move faster to develop high-tech ID cards that could prevent armed terrorists from boarding a plane by posing as airport workers or law officers, lawmakers said Wednesday. That term would come on top of the life sentence he had received last month in the deaths of 13 other patients. (AP)

Giuliani Admits Some 9/11 Missteps

Says city had focused on other potential targets ahead of attacks

NEW YORK | New York officials probably would not have changed security priorities even if they had knowledge of an August 2001 briefing paper that warned of terrorists casing city buildings, former mayor Rudolph Giuliani told the Sept. 11 commission Wednesday.

The Aug. 6, 2001, intelligence briefing for President Bush — titled "Bin Laden Determined To Strike in U.S." — referred to evidence of buildings in New York being looked at by terrorists as possible targets. Giuliani said the briefings he received from federal officials indicated that New York's bridges, tunnels and subways were more likely targets.

The former mayor and his commissioners were widely hailed for their efforts after two hijacked planes slammed into the twin towers, killing 2,749 people.

But on Tuesday, commission member John Lehman said the failure of city agencies to communicate effectively on 9/11 was a scandal "not worthy of the Boy Scouts, let alone this great city."

The mayor acknowledged there were "terrible mistakes" made on Sept. 11, but attributed that to the unprecedented circumstances.

Just before Giuliani took the stand, the commission released a staff report saying that flaws in the city's emergency phone system denied people inside the World Trade Center potentially lifesaving information. DEVLIN BARRETT (AP)

Ex-Mayor Heckled During Testimony

NEW YORK | Outraged relatives of World Trade Center victims heckled former Mayor Rudolph Giuliani on Wednesday as their hopes that he would be grilled by the Sept. 11 commission faded in the face of effusive praise from panel members.

"My son was murdered because of your incompetence!" shouted Sally Regenhard, whose firefighter son died in the trade center.

Giuliani finished his testimony and abruptly left the auditorium minutes later, upsetting family members who said they received few answers. Monica Gabrielle, who lost her husband, Richard, called it a "lost opportunity."

The acrimonious hearing brought together the mayor, who became a symbol of heroism for his steady response to the attack, and the activist relatives who have become a voice of dissent over his administration's emergency planning and response.

Asked afterward about the outbursts, Giuliani said: "I knew that that would happen. ... I attribute it to the stress and the trauma that they're going through."

General: Iraq Revolt May Grow

Military chiefs say transfer of power may strengthen insurgency

WASHINGTON | The commander of U.S. forces in the Middle East said Wednesday he may need more than the 135,000 troops already in Iraq once political control is handed back to the Iraqis on June 30 because the insurgency is likely to grow even more violent then.

Summoned to testify before Congress on prisoner abuse, Gen. John Abizaid also addressed broader issues, making clear that he believes time is running short to make a viable handover of sovereignty to the Iraqi people on June 30.

Abizaid conceded in his testimony that he may have underestimated the strength of the Iraqi insurgency and said U.S. forces are hampered by shortages of military police and other support troops.

As chief of the Central Command running the war, Abizaid said he takes responsibility for the abuses at Abu Ghraib prison.

Overcrowding in the cells of that jail "contributed to systemic failures," and may have created conditions for abuse to take place, he said.

At the same hearing, Sen. John Warner, R-Va., committee chairman, disclosed that the Pentagon had found another disk containing photos of abuse at Abu Ghraib. The Pentagon told Warner that its criminal investigators in Baghdad were given the new disk "under circumstances that warranted investigation." Twenty-four photos that apparently show abusive acts by U.S. forces are on the diskette.

CIA officials also are under investigation for alleged mistreatment of detainees. A Justice Department official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said Wednesday that the department is looking into three detainee deaths known to involve CIA personnel and contractors. ROBERT BURNS (AP)

FLOODING IN KANSAS | WATERLOGGED

HIGHWAY HAZARD: For drivers in Kansas City, Mo., getting to their destinations Wednesday meant dealing with many flooded streets. Heavy overnight rains caused flash flooding in parts of the city and outlying areas, with high water closing some roads and several reports of stranded motorists.

After Settlement, Muslim Girl Can Wear Head Scarf

WASHINGTON | A sixth-grade Muslim girl in Oklahoma can wear a head scarf to school under a settlement between the school district and the U.S. Justice Department, officials announced Wednesday.

The government filed suit in March on behalf of 11-year-old Nashala Hearn. She had been suspended twice by the district for wearing a head scarf, or hijab, to class. School officials said her clothing violated a dress code banning head coverings.

Hearn and her family said she wore the scarf as part of her observance of Islam. The department's complaint charged the district with religious discrimination. (AP)

Sights Set on the Military

Recruiting numbers strong despite abuse fallout, Pentagon says

CLEARWATER, FLA. | Jordan Hunkin wants to be a Marine so desperately that he skipped his high school graduation this month to get an early start at boot camp. His recruiter had to pull some strings to make it happen.

The slight 17-year-old wants to go straight into the infantry, qualify for Special Operations and become a sniper.

And if he is needed in Iraq, bring it on.

"I want to do my part," said Hunkin, who showed up at the recruiting office with his father on his birthday, the first day he could legally enlist. "I think it's our responsibility to the rest of the world to maintain order."

Despite a particularly bloody spring in Iraq for American troops and the fallout from the prisoner abuse scandal, business is still good for U.S. military recruiters.

AT ATTENTION: Jordan Hunkin, center, lines up with other recruits before the start of a training session at a U.S. Marines recruiting office in Clearwater, Fla.

The Pentagon said the fighting in Iraq has not affected overall recruiting numbers much one way or the other. Statistics through 2003 show all branches hitting annual targets, with no dramatic spikes. And despite the bloodshed, soldiers are re-enlisting at rates that exceed retention goals, according to the Pentagon.

Recruiters said news about prisoners being abused by military police officers in a Baghdad prison has not become an issue. Most recruits have not even brought it up, they said. MITCH STACY (AP)

Israeli Tank Shell Kills 10 in Gaza

Foray into Palestinian refugee camp draws fierce condemnation

RAFAH, GAZA STRIP | Israeli forces fired a missile and a barrage of tank shells to hold back a crowd of Palestinians protesting military operations in Gaza on Wednesday, killing at least 10, including children and teens.

The strike, captured in dramatic television footage, provoked anger throughout the Arab world and condemnation from European leaders including British Prime Minister Tony Blair, who called Israel's offensive in the Rafah refugee camp "unacceptable and wrong."

The U.N. Security Council demanded that Israel halt the demolition of Palestinian homes and condemned the killing of Palestinian civilians. The United States, which could have vetoed the resolution, abstained in the 14-0 vote to show its displeasure with Israel.

Israel expressed regret over the deaths. The army said soldiers fired about four tank shells at an abandoned building, which blocked their view of the protesters. At least one of the shells tore through the building and hit the crowd.

Israeli Defense Minister Shaul Mofaz said Israel would press ahead with its offensive in the camp to hunt down militants and destroy arms-smuggling tunnels. The invasion — the largest in the Gaza Strip in years — came less than a week after Palestinian militants killed 13 soldiers in Gaza. KHALIL HAMRA (AP)

U.S., Iraqis Dispute Target of Airstrike

Report that 40 dead were in wedding party is rejected by military

BAGHDAD | A U.S. aircraft fired on a house in the desert near the Syrian border Wednesday, and Iraqi officials said more than 40 people were killed, including children. The U.S. military said the target was a suspected safehouse for foreign fighters, but Iraqis said a helicopter had attacked a wedding party.

AP Television News footage showed a truck piled with bloodied bodies. Several were children, one of whom was decapitated.

The attack happened about 2:45 a.m. in a desert region near the border with Syria and Jordan, said Lt. Col. Ziyad al-Jbouri, the deputy police chief of the provincial capital of Ramadi. He said 42 to 45 people died.

The area is popular with smugglers and the U.S. military suspects militants use it as a route to slip in from Syria to fight the Americans. It is under constant surveillance.

In a statement, the U.S. Central Command said coalition forces conducted a military operation at 3 a.m.

against a "suspected foreign fighter safe house" in the open desert, about 15 miles from the Syrian border.

The coalition troops came under hostile fire and "close air support was provided," the statement said. The troops recovered weapons, Iraqi and Syrian currency, some passports and some satellite communications gear, it said.

U.S. Lt. Col. Dan Williams, a military spokesman, said earlier that the military was investigating. (AP)

Zarqawi's Group Claims Car Bomb

KARBALA, IRAQ | A group linked to al Qaeda claimed responsibility for Monday's car-bomb assassination of the Iraqi Governing Council president in a statement posted on a militant Islamic Web site.

The statement by the Monotheism and Jihad Group was the second claim of responsibility for the killing of Abdel-Zahraa Othman. A previously unknown Iraqi group, the Arab Resistance Movement, claimed responsibility Monday.

Abu Musab al-Zarqawi, a Jordanian suspected of strong links to al Qaeda who is wanted by the United States, is believed the leader of Monotheism and Jihad Group.

The statement, whose authenticity could not be confirmed, said other council members could meet the same fate. (AP)

OTHER DEVELOPMENTS

→ British Prime Minister Tony Blair said Wednesday that Iraq's interim government would have "full sovereignty" after the June 30 handover and indicated it would also have authority over its prisons and oil revenues.

→ Two U.S. soldiers died Tuesday, the military reported. One was fatally shot by an attacker in a cemetery near Baghdad, while another soldier was electrocuted in an accident near Beiji, north of Baghdad.

→ Ukrainian lawmakers on Wednesday overwhelmingly defeated an opposition initiative to pull the country's 1,650 troops out of Iraq.

U.S. Says al-Sadr Militia Using Holy Shrine as Cover

KARBALA, IRAQ | The U.S. military on Wednesday accused fighters loyal to a rebel cleric of firing on American forces from one of Shia Islam's holiest shrines in Karbala.

Muqtada al-Sadr's militia has been operating from the Imam Hussein shrine, said Cpt. Noel Gorospe, an Army spokesman.

Karbala has been the scene of heavy fighting since al-Sadr launched an uprising last month. Gorospe said the insurgents' use of the shrine was more noticeable in the past three days.

Al-Sadr has accused U.S. forces of desecrating shrines in Karbala and Najaf. The U.S. military denies the allegations, saying militiamen have used holy places as firing positions and weapons storerooms. (AP)

Singh assumes post after Gandhi takes herself out of running

NEW DELHI | Manmohan Singh, whose humble origins inspired him to start the reforms that opened up India's economy, was named prime minister Wednesday, ending weeks of turmoil that culminated with Sonia Gandhi's refusal to take the post.

President A.P.J. Abdul Kalam appointed Singh to form a government with a minority of the 545 seats in Parliament's lower house, after receiving letters of support from communists and socialists.

Singh, the first Sikh prime minister in the mainly Hindu nation's post-colonial history, said he was accepting the post even though voters signaled they wanted Gandhi.

style central planning and control that had nearly brought the economy to a standstill. The markets, which have been jittery since the likely makeup of the government became clear, soared at the news that Singh was to take the helm.

The Italian-born Gandhi, 57, stunned India by declining its highest elected position after leading her Congress Party and allies to an upset victory over the Hindu nationalist-led government of former Prime Minister Atal Bihari Vajpayee. # Heckler Throws Powder on Blair

British PM unharmed after cornstarch attack in House of Commons

LONDON | A protester in a VIP gallery hurled purple powder on Prime Minister Tony Blair in the House of Commons on Wednesday, forcing an evacuation and an urgent review of security.

The powder was only cornstarch, but legislators were shaken by the thought that the incident could have been a terrorist attack. It was a major security breach in the House of Commons, which recently put up a bulletproof, transparent screen to protect members from possible attacks from the public gallery.

Blair flinched as he was hit on the left shoulder by the powder. Lawmakers behind him dusted the powder off his back before he left the chamber. The prime minister's office later said he was fine.

British media reported that several condoms of the powder were thrown toward Blair.

Fathers 4 Justice, a group that campaigns on behalf of fathers denied access to their children, claimed responsibility and said Ron Davies, 44, of Worthing, England, hurled the cornstarch. Group spokesman Matt O'Connor said Davies had not seen his children in five years.

Davies and a second man in the VIP gallery were grabbed by security officers after the cornstarch hit Blair.

Baroness Golding, a former lawmaker in the governing Labour Party, confirmed that she signed for the men to enter one of two VIP galleries, which are not behind the security screen, and expressed regret.

"I shall, of course, give every support and cooperation to the authorities who are now investigating," she said. ED JOHNSON (AP)

Supervisor Charged In Accident

FAIRFAX, VA. | Fairfax County Board of Supervisors Chairman Gerald E. Connolly was charged with a misdemeanor count of hit and run, police said Wednesday. But Connolly said he "absolutely felt no impact" from what he called a "very minor fender bender," and was shocked to learn later that he had been in an accident.

It stemmed from an incident last Friday in the Tysons Corner section of the county. Investigators said Connolly, 54, was driving his 2003 Toyota when he hit an SUV while trying to change lanes. According to police, Connolly did not stop.

Officer Bud Walker, a Fairfax County police spokesman, said Connolly was issued a magistrate summons on Tuesday night. He is due in court June 22. Connolly said damage to his car amounted to "an indentation and a little dent," and that he understood damage to the other vehicle was even less.

Independence Air To Begin Boarding

Low-fare airline based at Dulles cleared for takeoff on June 16

AIRLINES | Travelers looking for low fares got another choice Wednesday as Independence Air began selling tickets.

Beginning June 16, the airline will fly to five cities — Chicago, Boston, Atlanta, Newark, N.J., and Raleigh-Durham, N.C. — from its hub at Washington Dulles International Airport. Thirty more destinations will be added this summer.

The company not only plans to compete directly with other low-cost carriers, but also hopes to challenge major airlines with a schedule of flights that will allow as many as 1,400 connections a day to cities served from Dulles.

“We’ll let the customers decide with their wallets which way they go,” said Kerry Skeen, the carrier’s chairman and chief operating officer.

cer. Independence has one-way fares as low as $39.

Since customers will have to book their flights on the airline’s Web site or call the airline directly, the per-transaction costs will be limited to about 50 cents, compared to up to $15 for some carriers using other online services or travel agents, Skeen said.

Flight frequency and reliance on smaller 50-seat Bombardier CRJ jets for the bulk of their flights also will help control costs and maximize gate usage at the airports Independence plans to serve.

Dulles is already home to discount carriers jetBlue, AirTran, Frontier and Ted, while Southwest is a major presence at Baltimore/Washington International Airport.

Tara Hamilton, a spokeswoman for the Metropolitan Washington Airports Authority, said the addition of Independence will give the airport “a significant element of low-fare air service.” DERRILL HOLLY (AP)

Rock of All Ages

The HFStival aims to please everyone from kids to cool older folk

ROCK FESTIVAL | If you're planning on heading down to RFK Stadium this Saturday for the HFStival, please be gentle to the older folks trying to navigate through the mosh pit. You just may slam into your cool aunt (you know the one we're talking about) who has shown up to see the Violent Femmes opening for The Cure.

Local modern-rock radio giant WHFS has assembled an enormous mishmash of music for their annual summer bash. Like most radio-sponsored extravaganzas, the lineup mostly reflects the reigning bands in popular music.

To someone who has taken an extended vacation from pop culture, the trends may be startling. For starters, the long-forgotten Cure is suddenly in vogue. While underground acts long shunned The Cure's synth-drenched production values and goth-rock image, many modern indie rockers have embraced the dynamic bass lines and post-punk riffs.

Popular radio acts have caught The Cure bug too, as evidenced by 311's recent hit cover of The Cure's seminal "Love Song." Even computer giant HP used "Pictures of You" for a recent TV ad campaign.

In another surprise to pop culture holdouts, confessional punk-pop "emo" bands have officially taken over our nation.

MUSIC FOR THE MASSES: Who's to say that your cool aunt won't rock out to P.O.D., top, or Jay-Z, right, and even non-rock critics might pogo to the Yeah Yeah Yeahs.

HFStival emo-popsters like Yellowcard, New Found Glory, Taking Back Sunday and Fall Out Boy are nearly indistinguishable clones featuring fast punk riffs and shout-along choruses that bemoan suburban hardships.

Rap-metal also apparently still sells. Genre pioneers and everyone's favorite stoners Cypress Hill will take the main stage at HFStival and they'll be joined by relative newcomers P.O.D. and Papa Roach, who both rely on heavy doses of crushing metal chords and devastating teenage torment.

Displaying chameleon-like qualities that would make Cher and John Kerry proud, So Cal punks The Offspring, also on HFStival's main stage, have managed to remain relevant for nearly two decades.

While The Offspring get a face lift and new haircuts every few years, The Violent Femmes just can't escape their 20-year-old smash hit "Blister in the Sun." Most HFStival attendees will probably clamor for two (or three) renditions.

In an apparent concession to the indie rock fans possibly attracted by The Cure's headlining spot, WHFS inked rock-critic darlings Modest Mouse and New York's Yeah Yeah Yeahs to perform on their "Street Stage."

Rounding out this motley crew is Hova himself, hip-hop god Jay-Z. How Jay got involved with the HFStival is anyone's guess, but his presence alone should brighten up the otherwise angst-ridden bill.

Orth knows — as a celebrity-mag journalist she's interviewed scores of marquee names, next big things and It-bunnies. She claims celebrity interviews used to be geared toward what these boldfaces, y'know, did — "their achievements, the content of their work, and how it got done." In her book, "The Importance of Being Famous: Behind the Scenes of the Celebrity Industrial Complex,"

Orth picks apart the fame machine that catapults nobodies onto Page Six for no better reason than that they have the biggest catapult. The unprecedented power of publicists, the coziness between editors and the beast they feed, the public lust for rumor, scandal and carefully planted "inside" looks at the stars' lives are detailed in this scabrous, disheartening volume.

Which brings us to Edwards. How the fluff-o-meter hit 11 at NPR, no less, is a mystery no "Morning Edition" listener can fathom. But his unceremonious sideways booting from host to "correspondent" is not the subject of his talk. He'll be reading from "Edward R. Murrow and the Birth of Broadcast Journalism." The book covers Murrow's successful efforts to provide both wide and deep reportage of World War II as it approached.

Murrow would be proud of Edwards. And that rumbling you hear is the sound of him turning in his grave when NPR replaces him with "Morning Edition's" new hosts — the Olsen twins. (EXPRESS)

Whatever Gives You Thrills

A Dublin band fills the stage with radiant California sunshine

MUSIC | American rock bands have a grand tradition of fleecing everything from accents to hair to music from their counterparts on the British Isles. The Thrills, headlining at Black Cat on Saturday, have finally given us klepto Yanks a taste of our own medicine.

After a summer spent lounging on San Diego's beaches, the four lads in The Thrills returned to their dank and dreary hometown of Dublin, Ireland, intent on capturing the best of sun-drenched, cheerful California pop music.

Some have dismissed the band as rip-off artists. But while The Thrills certainly wear their influences (The Beach Boys, The Byrds and The Monkees to name a few) on their sleeves and constantly name-drop West Coast cities, their sound is so fresh, catchy and smile-inducing that you just have to give them a free pass.

The hype-machine was working in overdrive last year when The Thrills dropped their exceptional debut LP, "So Much for the City." Equal parts upbeat alt-country and '60s jangle pop, the album cut right through modern rock's mopey veneer. If rock radio had any guts (we're talking to you, DC101), this album would have been your beach soundtrack last summer.

The Thrills' opening act, Brooklyn's Ambulance Ltd., is garnering glowing reviews for its first album, simply titled "LP," released last month. Ambulance Ltd. draws on a wide range of indie influences, but it cribs most obviously from late-'80s British shoegaze groups like My Bloody Valentine. PETER DENTON

Homecoming: Nils Lofgren

Washington can be proud of guitar-god Nils Lofgren, who has worked with rock classics like Bruce Springsteen and Neil Young but is known for his own powerful, heart-breaking songs and finger-flashing six-string genius. Plus, he likes to assemble a band of local musicians when he comes home.

With his tenor voice and acoustic guitar, Lofgren's a six-string hero and nice guy.

Vessels of Change

Jars of Clay made the pop landscape safe for Christian rock

MUSIC | Funny how innovation works. Sometimes a new idea causes riots, headlines and division among eggheads — the debut of Stravinsky's "Rites of Spring," for example, at which the audience ripped out chairs because the music was too weird. And sometimes a li'l ol' band that got together in college has eleventy-billion radio hits that don't sound all that different from other chart-toppers, and it's dismissed as irrelevant because the lyrics are too, well, Christian.

Welcome to the world Jars of Clay changed. The Illinois-based quartet began rocking acoustically in the early '90s, when Christian music meant gospel stars and goopy songs of heavenly glory from clean-cut folks who never made the cover of Rolling Stone. The Dove awards, the annual Christian music award ceremony, was treated with the approximate respect in the music press as the Adult Video News awards was by Hollywood.

But by combining hushed acoustic melodicism with lyrics of faith, Jars of Clay sprung Christian contemporary music, or CCM, into the lime-light. You could be young and have a religion! And sing about it! And put on electrifying live shows! It sounds so very "Well, duh" in a pop world that includes such disparate and successful believers as Evanescence, U2 and Stacie Orrico, but at the time, alternative rock was still a familiar landscape of cars, girls and unspecified boyish angst.

Jars have electrified their sound but not stepped away from their message. Their 2003 album, "Who We Are Instead," includes a reverently beautiful version of the spooky hymn "Jesus' Blood Never Failed Me Yet," a cult favorite among new-music aficionados familiar with contemporary-classical composer Gavin Bryars's loop of a homeless British man, and Tom Waits singing the song. It's a step away from the predictable indie-rock sound of Jars' youth, but if the band's precedent is any example, they may make Christian lyrics safe for classical music as well.

Jammin' Jubilee

MUSIC | "Jah live," Bob Marley proclaimed in his 1976 tune of the same name. He was referring to what Rastafarians claim as a living God, the late former Emperor of Ethiopia, Haile Selassie.

After Selassie took the throne in 1930, he became hugely popular and inspired Rastafarians to regard the historic event as a prophecy fulfilled. His 45-year-reign included a visit to Washington in 1954, and to mark the occasion's golden anniversary, a host of reggae and traditional Ethiopian performers will converge Sunday at Nation for the "Golden Jubilee Celebration," a celebratory concert with a cultural marketplace, international vegetarian cuisine and kids' activities. The festivities commemorate Selassie's trip, which included a meeting with President Eisenhower and the addressing of a joint congressional session.

Headlining is Brooklyn-based Rastafarian Sister Carol. She's not only carved out a sizeable slice of success in the male-dominated reggae genre, but the Grammy-nominated singer/toaster has a teaching degree and has flexed her acting chops in a pair of Jonathan Demme flicks ("Something Wild" and "Married to the Mob"). She's been compared to Queen Latifah, as both women put forth inspirational messages instead of overcooked sexual imagery.

Proceeds from the jubilee will go toward assisting sponsorship of students attending the Shashamane Settlement School in Ethiopia and D.C.'s Ras Tafari Basic Academy.

What Has Red Eyes And Sings?

INSECTS | Who doesn't love a good comeback? The cicada, that bug we couldn't stop talking about 17 years ago has returned with its beady eyes, creepy long wings, and maddening soundtrack.

Prepare for their vast numbers to once again inspire hyperbolic B-movie talk around every water cooler. ("I walked outside and there were millions of them all over my feet, with every step I heard the crunching of thousands of exoskeletons! They're taking over! Run!")

For even the casual entomologist, this resurrection is more phenomenon than "Fear Factor": a bug lover's Halley's comet. This year's crop of critters has been burrowed away all these years. Now they're coming up and, damn it, they're ready to party like it's 1987. They'll be busy buzzing, looking for love, and laying eggs so we can relive it in 2021.

The folks at Great Falls Park have a front row seat for it all. Drop by this weekend for "Brood X: The Cicada Invasion," a walking tour during which one of their experts will help you get up close and personal with this bug before it gets all reclusive on us again. Rumor has it one acre can have a million of the six-legged suckers and, as Great Falls likes to point out, they've got 800 acres there, so you do the math.

Just don't forget to make a reservation — there's space for millions of cicadas, but for humans, it's slightly more limited. AIMEE AGRESTI

Great Falls Park, 9200 Old Dominion Drive; McLean; Sat.-Sun., May 22-23, 2 p.m.; 703-285-2965.

Not the Cool Kids

New Jersey's Misfits invented gross-out rock — thanks, guys!

MUSIC | Your Insane Clown Posse, your GWARs — these imposters did not invent blood-spattered gross-out rock. There would be no club managers desperately tacking plastic sheeting over their walls if it weren't for the one and only Misfits.

Even heavy metal fans might not know that Glenn Danzig, he of the lucky baddass last name who later led the bands Samhain and Danzig, founded a confrontational four-piece group in New Jersey in the 1970s.

Tasteless, menacing and something of a guilty pleasure for punk-rockers weary of the genre's earnestness, The Misfits dressed like club bouncers in the ninth circle of heck and put on live shows that defined "spatterpunk."

VEDDY SCEDDY, HUH, KIDS? In a gentler time, folks were creeped out by these oafs.

But Danzig was and remains a musical craftsman at heart — The Misfits' songs were hooky, fist-pumping anthems that would have fit in at any Black Sabbath set, except that the band busted out the tunes at hyperspeed and delivered deliberately crude musicianship. They were a mess, a joke, the anti-Christ, punk pranksters, rock monsters.

Although The Misfits disbanded in the early '80s, their legacy lives on. Later outfits took a close listen to their propulsive punk and teased out the great songs at the core. They've been covered by everyone from Guns N' Roses to Metallica, and Danzig has kept himself at the forefront of eerie metal with his later, more sophisticated projects.

At this point, The Misfits' exhausting stage show may seem tamer than Britney's snake, what with all the Faygo and fake blood being spewed about modern night-clubs.

Not that they were all that scary in the first place.

Last year they released "Project 1950." With a new lineup that includes singer Jerry Only, bassist Dez Cadena of Black Flag and Marky Ramone of The Ramones, a new, not-necessarily-improved Misfits covered an album full of dreamy mid-century prom hits in their own inimitable style.

So pin on your corsage and sneak in a flask; this may be the first and only time the Jaxx stage will witness a Paul Anka song. (EXPRESS)

Marvin's Remarkable Life

PAGES | Spiritual, soulful and sexual, Marvin Gaye was as tormented as he was brilliant. The R&B legend who was gunned down 20 years ago by his own father grew up in Southwest D.C. and is the captivating subject of "Mercy, Mercy Me: The Art, Loves & Demons of Marvin Gaye."

This engaging tome is from University of Pennsylvania profes-

Through extensive interviews and research, Dyson, who appears at Politics & Prose on Friday, uncovers much new information about the singer's life — both its romances and scarring traumas. Dyson also examines the similarities between Gaye and troubled R&B balladeer R. Kelly, who offers a frighteningly candid interview. It's a loving, complex portrait of Gaye, warts and all. CRAIG SMITH

Dining | Weekend Pass

LIVE ONLINE

Ask Tom

Washington Post Sunday Magazine columnist TOM SIETSEMA talks restaurants Wednesdays at 11 a.m. on washingtonpost.com/liveonline.

I'm crazy about goat meat, especially stewed, yet can't seem to find any restaurants in our area that serve it. Any ideas?

The new Greek restaurant in Dupont Circle, Mourayo, serves goat soup and downtown, El Chalan dishes up a Peruvian goat stew that is tangy with vinegar and broadened with beer.

Mourayo: 1732 Connecticut Ave., NW; 202-667-2100; Metro: Dupont Circle

El Chalan: 1924 I St. NW; 202-293-2765; Metro: Farragut West

I've never had Ethiopian — what would you suggest at Addis Ababa?

I'm fond of the steak tartare with herbed butter, the chicken simmered in a sauce of chilies and onions, and almost all of the vegetable dishes.

2106 18th St. NW; 202-232-6092

I'm looking for a restaurant that serves the Bolivian food saltenas. They're similar to empanadas, but the bread is sweeter and they're much juicier.

Tutto Bene in Arlington serves delectable saltenas, but only on weekends and only during lunch. (Be prepared for a line if you're looking for carry-out.)

Tutto Bene: 501 N. Randolph St.; 703-522-1005; Metro: Ballston

Hot pockets: Tutto Bene's saltenas.

LEWNES'

(Severn Avenue at Fourth Street, Eastport Annapolis; 410-263-1617)
— In the assembly-line world of big-name big-beef, Lewnes' is your father's Oldsmobile. Dark-woody, white-linen and generous in the family-service style, Lewnes' serves up expense-account portions but concentrates on the bottom line: dry-aged porterhouse, strip, rib-eye, prime rib, and veal and lamb chops cooked exactly to order, under broilers hot enough to sear the surface and render the fat, which gives it that old-fashioned flavor. Try the pristine lump crabmeat cocktail, clams casino and sides of asparagus and onion-spiced sautéed spinach. Entrees $16.95-$32.95. EVE ZIBART

Eve Zibart's dining reviews appear every Friday in The Washington Post's Weekend section. This week she tackles new restaurants at local beaches.

SITCOMERCIALS

"Seinfeld and Superman" is a clever little movie featuring Jerry Seinfeld hanging out, cracking wise and discussing bits of trivia with his pal. But in this case, his pal happens to be a two-dimensional version of the Man of Steel, the kind who likes to hang around and talk about nothing.

So why is this the future of television? For starters, it's a commercial for a credit card. And it was first "broadcast" on the Internet. Tonight, NBC will include some new material, but it is essentially the same. And this is just the beginning. A spokesperson for the

Randy Johnson: Aged to Perfection

Southpaw's greatest feat comes at the age of 40

BASEBALL | Arizona Diamondbacks pitcher Randy Johnson has come a long way since his first no-hitter.

Back then, nearly 14 years ago, the young, scowling 6-foot-10 fireballer was tough to hit — he just wasn't quite sure where the ball was headed once it left his hand.

Now, at 40, the man nicknamed the Big Unit has aged to perfection.

Johnson became the oldest pitcher in baseball history to throw a perfect game, retiring all 27 hitters he faced in the Arizona Diamondbacks' 2-0 victory over Atlanta on Tuesday night.

With his sizzling fastball and nasty slider, Johnson struck out 13 and went to three balls on just one hitter.

Johnson's was just the 17th perfect game in major league history, the 15th since the modern era began in 1900 and the first since the New York Yankees' David Cone against Montreal on July 18, 1999.

Cy Young had been the oldest to throw a perfect game, doing it in 1904 at age 37. "Everything he's done up to this point pales in comparison," Arizona manager Bob Brenly said.

That's saying a lot. Johnson has won five Cy Young Awards, put up staggering strikeout numbers and helped Arizona win the World Series in 2001.

Now this, the rarest of pitching feats.

Johnson became the 27th pitcher to throw two no-hitters, and the nearly 14-year span between them was longer than anyone else. His first came for Seattle on June 2, 1990, when he no-hit Detroit but walked six.

MR. PERFECT: Randy Johnson outdid Cy Young Tuesday night when he became the oldest player to throw a perfect game in a Major League Baseball game.

"That was far from perfect," Johnson recalled. "I was a very young pitcher who didn't have any idea where the ball was going. I was far from being a polished pitcher. Fourteen years later, I've come a long way as far as knowing what I want to do." Johnson struck out the final batter, pinch-hitter Eddie Perez, with a 98 mph fastball.

He pumped his fist and raised his glove, a rare grin spreading across his rugged face. He started to put out his hand when Robby Hammock arrived at the mound, but the young catcher — a foot shorter than Johnson — gave the pitcher a bear hug instead.

Within seconds, Johnson was mobbed by beaming teammates.

Johnson (4-4) is only the fifth pitcher to throw no-hitters in both the National and American leagues, joining Young, Jim Bunning, Hideo Nomo and Nolan Ryan.

White Agrees to Ban for Drug Use

U.S. sprinter stripped of medals, will not compete in Olympics

DOPING | Sprinter Kelli White accepted a two-year ban Wednesday for using performance-enhancing drugs and will not compete in the Olympic Games this summer in Athens.

She was also stripped of every medal she has won in the past four years, including three world championship golds.

White, 27, tested positive for the stimulant modafinil at last year's world championships and U.S. nationals. The U.S. Anti-Doping Agency said it also found evidence she had used a previously undetectable steroid and the endurance-enhancing hormone erythropoietin.

White, the first athlete to be suspended based on information from the BALCO case, agreed to help the anti-doping agency in its investigation.

Kelli White accepted her punishment in hopes of helping clean up track and field.

"If I can make a difference in cleaning up the sport, I will have done more for the sport than anything I could have done on the track," she said in a statement.

Pacers Wait for Finals Opponent

NBA PLAYOFFS | Jermaine O'Neal didn't have to score a bunch of points to leave his mark on the most important game of Indiana's season. O'Neal scored just seven points and shot 2-for-10 in Game 6 on Tuesday night.

But he grabbed 13 rebounds and had three blocked shots, including a huge one in the closing minutes to help the Pacers advance to the Eastern Conference finals.

Game 1 of the conference finals is Saturday in Indianapolis. The Pacers will face the winner of the New Jersey-Detroit series, which concludes with Game 7 on Thursday night in Detroit. (AP)

D.C., Va. Leaders to Land Expos

Major League Baseball aims for July decision on Montreal relocation

BASEBALL | Major League Baseball is moving toward a decision on the future home of the Montreal Expos, and Washington, D.C., and Northern Virginia appear to be the leading contenders.

The sport's relocation committee met for 2 1/2 hours Wednesday, and baseball Chief Operating Officer

Bob DuPuy said the group plans to meet with Commissioner Bud Selig within a month to present options. DuPuy hopes for a decision by the All-Star break in mid-July.

Since Washington Mayor Anthony Williams presented a financing plan earlier this month, the capital has been mentioned most in relocation talk, a baseball official involved in the Expos' situation told The Associated Press on the condition of anonymity.

Virginia Baseball Stadium

Authority Executive Director Gabe Paul Jr. sent a letter to all 30 clubs Wednesday that stated his group has completed funding plans for a ballpark near Dulles International Airport, one major league team executive said, also on the condition of anonymity. That plan is tied to a development with the Marriott hotel chain, the official said.

If either the District of Columbia or Northern Virginia is awarded the Expos, the team would first move to RFK Stadium. RONALD BLUM (AP)

NHL Returns to NBC Under New 2-Year Deal

HOCKEY | NBC is back on the ice after 29 years.

The network will broadcast NHL games the next two seasons under a revenue-sharing deal, replacing ABC as the league's broadcast partner, even as the NHL braces for an offseason that will feature labor talks to head off a potential lockout that could disrupt next season after the collective bargaining agreement expires Sept. 15.

The deal, announced Wednesday, will call for NBC to broadcast seven regular-season games beginning in January and six playoff games in regular Saturday afternoon time slots. The network also will televise Games 3-7 of the Stanley Cup finals in prime time. NBC last regularly broadcast NHL games 29 years ago, but televised the league's All-Star game from 1991-94.

Later Wednesday, ESPN and the NHL agreed to a deal to keep the league on ESPN2 next season with an option for two more years.

"This is the right deal at the right time with the right parties," NHL Commissioner Gary Bettman said.

Though the best-selling "The Da Vinci Code" was contentious enough to produce 10 books attempting to discredit it, author DAN BROWN said that he considered including material alleging that Jesus Christ survived the crucifixion. While speaking at a benefit Tuesday for a New Hampshire writers' group, Brown said the theory is backed by "very credible sources," but that he ultimately decided it was too flimsy: "For me, that was just three or four steps too far." ### TO THE EDITOR

JOSHUA LEGG'S "Live Online" session (May 18) allowed him to answer a question about whether permitting gay marriage would give rise to polygamy. He laughs off this claim as irrelevant. His very defense makes him prey to the snare of incestuous marriage. After all, if a father and daughter truly love one another, isn't marriage perfectly reasonable? Mr. Legg pursues a most irrational definition of love, so the ridiculous counterexamples multiply. Marriage is not just about some fuzzy, feel-good notion of love — it is the building block of society.

—JAMES KRUEGER
Falls Church, Va.

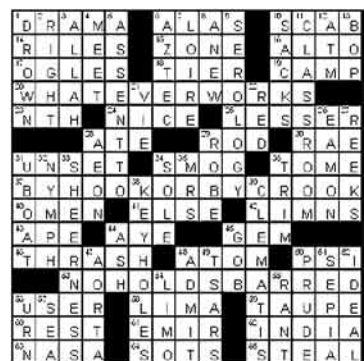

NOT TO DEMEAN Nichole Brown's comments (Letters, May 19), but I find it surprising that people are shocked when they hear about Metro patrons neglecting to give up their seats for pregnant women or about the general decadence of society. One need only visit a daycare center to witness our inborn tendency to suit ourselves rather than others, as the children horde their toys. Deeds such as giving up one's seat for another are the exception, not the norm in this broken world of ours.

—KEITH WOJCIECH

Horoscope | Stella Wilder

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — Take care you don't use others as stepping-stones; be fair and straightforward in all your deals. Don't hide the truth.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — You may encounter a surprising conflict when your own plans differ dramatically from the plans of a close friend.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — You're in the mood for anything that will heat you up — from the physically challenging to the emotionally fiery. Avoid obvious dangers.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Concentrate on beginnings — at work and at home. You can revitalize yourself and those around you; be sure your outlook remains positive.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Keep your sense of humor, Virgo, and remember that a little teasing, while harmless, can be fun for all and educational for you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — Pay attention to your appearance. Try to anticipate how others will react to you in given situations. Do you know all the rules?

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — Scheduling may prove difficult as you try to work in too many things in too restricted a span of time. Don't be so strict with yourself.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — You may have to pick up the pace if you wish to come in ahead of schedule — and ahead of the competition.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — You may receive news of someone from your past that inspires a great deal of admiration and envy. You may want a second chance.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — You're likely to find yourself at cross-purposes — not with anyone else, but with yourself. That dual nature is rearing its head again.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — A special guest — whether his or her arrival is expected or a complete surprise — can point you in the right direction.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Someone will respond to you with an equal measure of curiosity and restraint. It's up to you to make things possible.

Fishy Find

From washingtonpost.com/liveonline

ANDREW LAZUR, associate professor at the University of Maryland Center for Environmental Science, was online Wednesday to discuss the recent discovery of snakehead fish in local waters.

As a tropical fish, can the snakehead survive during the colder months?

The northern snakehead fish is actually a temperate species adapted to cooler waters, tolerating 40-80 degrees. Many of the other species of snakehead fish are tropical and prefer warmer water temperatures.

How tolerant of varying salinity levels is this fish? Can we expect it in all the tributaries and throughout the Chesapeake soon?

It's native to freshwater rivers and streams in Asia and apparently does not tolerate salinity well, which may prevent its migration to brackish or marine waters.

How big can they get and what are some examples of their prey?

The northern snakehead fish can reach up to 13 pounds and 33 inches in length. In their natural environment, their main prey as adults is smaller fish. Juveniles will prey upon small crustaceans, insects and fish.

If these snakehead fish aren't so bad, then why the big ordeal and attempt to rid our waters of them?

Any non-native fish can complicate the food chain. Having the snakehead fish in the river adds another predator and may impact the balance of native predator-prey fishes.

My four-year-old daughter wants to know if a snakehead bites people.

The fish has been reported in only one case to have bitten someone, but it was when the person was disturbing its nest.
